HYPRESIN Modern Office Series

As an important part of modern interior environment design, modern office space design can be said to be a direct product of the modernist architectural movement. Modern office space design involves architecture, sociology, psychology, aesthetics, folklore, ergonomics, structural engineering, building physics, materials science and so on. It is a creative activity that combines rationality and sensibility based on science and art as the form of expression to shape an indoor living environment with equal emphasis on spirit and material.
